

Centenary Celebration

Graduate Women New Zealand

Breaking barriers:

'Looking back – Looking forward'

with:

Kate Hannah MA

Kate Hannah's principal research area is the historiography of the history of science, with a focus on the cultures and subcultures of science, gender in science history, and narrative and complexity. Kate holds more than one role at Te Pūnaha Matatini, a New Zealand Centre of Research Excellence for complex systems and networks.

Captain Lisa Hunn

BSc, DipFA, MDSS, FAWC

Assistant Chief of Navy
(Strategy and Engagement)

During her thirty-year naval career, Lisa has served at sea as a warfare officer and was the first woman to command a RNZN Frigate. A Global Women member and active women's advocate, Captain Hunn is passionate about service and growing future women leaders.
